UNDER THE STARRY FLAG.

Greatest Parade of Civil War Veterans Since the Famous Review of 1865.

IT MAY BE THE LAST GENERAL REVIEW.

Thirty-Five Thousand of the Aged Life-Guards of the Nation Paraded the Streets of Chicago and Received the Homage of the Assembled Multitudes.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Along streets filled with a cheering multitude, past towering buildings, gay with the glow of the Stars and Stripes, through arches of honor beneath suspended banners, and swinging portraits of illustrious leaders, now part of the water beyond that dark river whose brink their feet had so often pressed on fields of death, 35,000 of the guard of the nation—the Grand Army of the Republic—marched.

It was their greatest parade since that day, in 1865, when with ranks fresh from the triumph of war they marched down Pennsylvania avenue in Washington with their faces turned toward home, and their hearts filled with the promise of the victories of peace.

It was probably the last of the great parades upon which the members of the Grand Army will march on earth. The average age of the veterans is close upon the average span of human life, its ranks are thinning fast, and its membership has commenced to fall away. The muster roll, must hereafter, according to the official of the organization, decrease more rapidly than at any period from the end of the war to now.

The last year of the century across the years of which they have embossed so glorious a record was a most fitting time for what so many of them have declared will be their last review, and still more appropriate was that the sun and wind combined to produce a day eminently suitable for the occasion. A light breeze came off Lake Michigan strong enough to lift the banners out to the full length of their folds and at times with force sufficient to make it necessary for more than one soldier to grasp the staff to keep the flag on high. It mattered nothing, however, how many hands were necessary on the staff. They were ready always. The veterans carried the flag as they had carried it forty years ago, and save in salute, a banner was lowered, not a fold touched the ground.

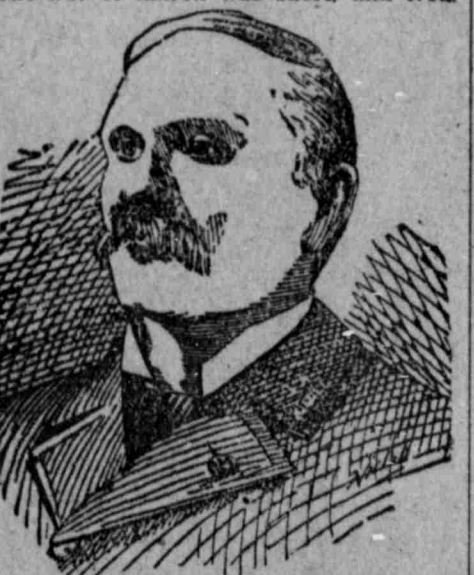

Chicago's Royal Welcome.

Not in many years has Chicago extended so affectionate a welcome to a stranger within her gates, as that she gave to the heroes of the Grand Army. As her people watched the march of the old soldiers there flashed across them the thought that filled the mind of the Hebrew historian, when, centuries ago, he wrote of the heroes of King David, "These be the mighty men." As Chicago estimated them so she greeted them. Notwithstanding the age of the members of the Grand Army of the Republic more members of that organization had announced their intention of joining in the line than was expected by the most sanguine of the veterans.

Old soldiers from every state in the Union were in the march with their comrades of former years, and throughout the length of the parade 7,500 points of the Grand Army had representation. The parade, which started at the intersection of Randolph street and Michigan avenue, was about five hours in passing a given point. The line of march was short, and from its Taxes Reduced.

St. Louis, Aug. 28.—The assessment of the lines and property of the St. Louis Transit Co. by the state board of equalization for 1900 is nearly $1,000,000 less than that of last year, notwithstanding the vastly increased value of the property. This will reduce the company's taxes $18,000. The assessment of the St. Louis & Suburban (not in the trust) has been increased $7,685.41.

COL. ALBERT D. SHAW, the start, to the south end of the court of honor where it disbanded, after passing in review before Commander-in-Chief Shaw, it comprised 27 of the city squares.

Ancient, But Active.

Though the majority of the marchers were men of advanced years, the parade moved swiftly and without break or disorder. The columns came on twelve abreast, well closed, solid and compact. The formations were almost invariably well kept, for the men who had gone through years of desperate war without being weary of struggling were too old to be laggards now.

The Marching Column.

The marching column was headed by a detachment of the city police under the command of Lieut. Flynn, which in battalion formation, swept the street from curb to curb. Behind them came a band of 70 pieces, and then Chief Marshal, M. H. Wood with his immediate staff, consisting of Col. H. S. Dietrich, Col. J. E. Stuart and Col. C. E. Young. A regiment of assistant marshals and aides came clattering on, then behind the great band of the Second Infantry of the Illinois national guard came Commander-in-Chief Shaw and the members of his staff comprising Adj. Gen. Stewart, Quartermaster General F. J. Atkinson, Inspector General H. J. Torrence and Chief-of-Staff J. Cory Winans.

Wisconsin Had the Right of Line.

Wisconsin was given the right of the line, and as her column came turning around the corner of Jackson boulevard into the broad sweep of Michigan avenue, with bands playing and colors flying, the people seemed to realize that here at last came the true pageant of patriotism. The old, worn out fluttering flags that had gone before were nothing in themselves, but as representatives of the power that gave them the glory that they were they were everything.

The Units of Power.

Marching behind them under colors frailer and brighter as their own fame must ever grow with the advancing years came the units of that power. In the flashing men of a mighty race unconquered yet by land or sea. In them lay and through them came, the force that has made the nation what it is and what it will be. No matter what might come in the future the men before them had made the past a glory that may mellow and never grow dim, and the crowd seeming to catch these things in a breath, as rank after rank the old soldiers wheeled into the avenue, went wild with enthusiasm.

Cheering Multitudes.

They cheered, waved their hats and cheered again until they could cheer no more. Then they stood as they had stood for the battered flags, with bared heads, as the veterans with steps more halting than of old, but with hearts as high as ever, passed on to make the parade of 1900 what they had made many another march—a credit to themselves and an honor to their country.

It will take 5,000 fatted cattle to fill the order. The cattle will be sent from San Francisco, via Hawaii and Japanese ports.

Its Taxes Reduced.

St. Louis, Aug. 28.—The assessment of the lines and property of the St. Louis Transit Co. by the state board of equalization for 1900 is nearly $1,000,000 less than that of last year, notwithstanding the vastly increased value of the property. Traps for the Unwary.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The post office department is giving its attention to the "Little Investment" companies that are springing up, under different names, all over the country, and which are said to be nothing but schemes to separate the unwary from the money. Many of them have been incorporated in Missouri and Illinois.

Germans Sore on Roberts.

Berlin, Aug. 27.—The German papers continue their crusade against Lord Roberts. REFORMER M'CANN IS OUT.

The Man Who Went to the St. Louis Workhouse "For His Rights" Given His Liberty.

St. Louis, Aug. 26.—John J. McCann, famous as prisoner No. 239, was released from the workhouse at noon Saturday, after having served 40 days of a six months' sentence imposed by the police court upon his refusal to pay a real estate license fee, because he contended that it deprived him of his constitutional rights as an American citizen.

The release is the direct outcome of a call made by the mayor and the city counselor on Mr. McCann at the workhouse Friday night, when an offer of a pardon was firmly declined by the prisoner.

The mayor then told Mr. McCann that he would remit the fine for which he was serving and order his discharge. Mr. McCann replied that he could not resist, with physical force, any attempt on the part of the authorities to cause him to leave the institution, nor was he so bereft of his senses as to pose as a martyr.

It is said that Hon. Richard Dalton, who is a single-taxer, called on the mayor and requested him to release McCann.

ACCEPT NEW CONDITIONS.

Chinese Viceroy Willing to Accept the Situation and Lead Their Aid for Peace.

Washington, Aug. 25.—The first assurances reached here yesterday that the powerful Chinese viceroys were disposed to accept the new condition in China, and would assist in the maintenance of peace. The information came in a dispatch through diplomatic channels, and stated that one of the foreign officers had received a telegram from two of the most powerful central viceroys stating that they intended to give their best efforts to maintain quiet throughout the central portions of China.

As this assurance came subsequent to the capture of Pekin, it is regarded as a favorable sign of disposition of the viceroys, whose authority in the interior is very great. Their course has been watched with much concern by officials, for, since Pekin is in a chaotic condition the most influential authority in the empire is that of the viceroys.

NO REMEDY EQUALS PERUNA, SO THE WOMEN ALL SAY

Miss Susan Wymar.

Miss Susan Wymar, teacher in the Richmond school, Chicago, Ill., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman regarding Peruna. She says: "Only those who have suffered as I have, can know what a blessing it is to be able to find relief in Peruna. This has been my experience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and every bottle of Peruna I ever bought proved a good friend to me."—Susan Wymar.

Mrs. Margaretta Dauben, 1214 North Superior St., Racine City, Wis., writes: "I feel so well and good and happy now that pen cannot describe it. Peruna is everything to me. I have taken several bottles of Peruna for female complaint. I am in the change of life and it does me good." Peruna has no equal in all of the irregularities and emergencies peculiar to women caused by pelvic catarrh.

News is scarce.

Fewer people came to town last week than any week during the year.

Farmers are busy taking care of their tobacco, the long continued drought causing it to ripen prematurely, and this, with a sudden influx of worms, has caused them to be very busy.

Hon. Will P. Scott delivered a speech at this place last Thursday. We were so situated that we could not hear him. We think a great deal of Will, but fear he made a mistake in abusing Lawrence Rogers and the committee, for not allowing him to dictate the manner of holding the convention. We are in no sense of the word a politician, but it strikes us as a bad start to begin public life by abusing those to whom he must eventually look to for support. He claimed that his friends could not or would not attend a convention in Madisonville. Now, we do not think his friends are very enthusiastic in his support, if they can not lose one day, as the busy season will be over by that time, and we think his time would be more profitably employed in showing the voters wherein he is better qualified to represent this district, where he has done more for his party, made more sacrifices for his party than Mr. Seebree, and if he will convince the people that he has served his party longer and more faithfully than Mr. Seebree, then we will rally to his support. Unless he can do this we very much fear that he will have to take a back seat while the procession goes by.

We see in Friday's Hustler a paragraph in regard to the Hon. George H. Towery's challenge to discuss the political questions of the day, in which the writer says that the Democrat that will not accept that challenge is a hog. We think there are a whole lot of hogs in the Democratic party, and we are inclined to think that the one who wrote the paragraph is a good-sized pig himself.
